

Process Isolation

Process Isolation

Process isolation is when a program is run, keeping processes separated, it prevents the failure of one process from causing another to fail.

- Programs run independently
- What one program is doing doesn't affect others
- If a program crashes, it doesn't crash the whole thing.

